Biography

Edward Inchbold (b. 1995) is a self taught Australian artist. He makes work from his life, drawing on a history of chronic psychiatric illnesses, disability, complex trauma and recent, lengthy periods of hospitalisation and extensive electroconvulsive therapy and treatment with ketamine.

Having cut his teeth making films through his childhood and his early 20s, Inchbold came to painting in late 2020 at 25. He began to exhibit within a year and has since presented four solo exhibitions – most recently Brand New People (2024) and Wisteria Lemonade (2025), both at Stella Downer Fine Art. Inchbold also regularly contributes to group shows and has been a finalist in several art prizes, including the Lloyd Rees Memorial Youth Art Awards. He has appeared in publications and is represented in collections internationally. Inchbold lives and works in Sydney.
